From the CEO and Board President

In this time of uncertainty as it relates to government support of social service programs, NJAC is pleased to report a stable year.

This year saw growth into an area NJAC has the perfect blend of expertise for- a Batters Intervention Program (BIP). This program is funded by NJDCF and targets batterers in Monmouth County.

NJAC's BIP has been designed to integrate research and best practices recommended by the New Jersey state domestic violence coalition in order to achieve increased safety within households, through the use of a non-violent and non-coercive family structure.

Although our programming and geographic locations are diverse, social justice is the underpinning of all of our work. We are motivated in the belief that though many people are negatively impacted by social inequities, they have the capacity to make positive changes in their lives given the tools and support necessary to do so.

Thank you to our valued staff, dedicated volunteers, and generous donors and funders for supporting the many struggling men, women and children that find a brighter future through NJAC.
